Te Kiko o te Marau ā-Kura

He aha? Hei aha?

- Te Marau ā-Kura (localised curriculum) is a living, breathing curriculum that reflects the expectations and aspirations of the whānau, hapū and iwi. A Marau ā-Kura demonstrates the strategic commitment of the school to provide quality programmes that serve the educational needs of the students and their whānau. Central to quality professional practice, most kura/schools are seeking support to develop the rigour of their Marau ā-Kura including clearly articulating the alignment of whānau aspirations to classroom implementation.
- Provides contexts for learning both localised, nationalised, globalised so that it delivers to the needs of the students in that specific setting.
- Creates a framework for teaching and learning – how teachers will teach, how learners will learn and provides a framework for aromatawai
